Three Pioneer Investigators

A Hallock Genealogy

An attempt to tabulate and set in order the numerous descendants of who landed at Southold, Long Island, N.Y., about the year 1640, and settled at Aquebogue, near Mattituck.

Peter Hallock

The foundation of this work was laid by Rev. William A. Hallock, D.D., who published his Hallock Ancestry in 1866. The same being extended by his Nephew, Charles Hallock, M. A., to the year 1906.

This work is undertaken in this year of our Lord 1926, by an interested descendant

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I have undertaken to reprint this family genealogy because I believe in its value as the record of a family. I would like to acknowledge my indebtedness to Rex Ellis Hallock of Salina, Kansas who inherited an original copy of the work and graciously lent it to me so that I might have it reprinted.

THE PROCESSION OF THE GENERATIONS

I stood upon the ocean strand
And cast my gaze afar from land.
I listened to the ocean's roar
As wave on wave dashed on the shore.
The foamy billows rose and fell—
They seemed of life a tale to tell.

They came in endless re-formation
With not a lapse or hesitation,
They seemed intent to invade the land
And lift their heads above the strand,
But when this end they would attain,
Ambition's purpose thus to gain,
A fateful tremor seized their feet
And sand and spray together meet.
Thus fond ambition fades away
And life's fond dream is naught but spray;
Bold animation fades in sleep
And all flows back into the deep.

I took my stand on Pisga's Height
To view the Promised Land:
I cast my eye from left to right
To glimpse an Eden if I might,
With Canaan close at hand.
A sea of human life between
Rolled crest on crest—a vivid scene;
A little space the eye could span—
Beyond the endless surges ran;
The few in motion close at hand
Are types of all this countless band.
Like ocean wave they lift their head—
From an Eternity they've sped,
With fulsome pride they move on high,
Then shrink away and fade and die.
As from Eternity they came
Their life flows back into the same.

Our little lives seem base and small—
Just one lone drop among them all,
But who can tell our true relation
To the great Cause of this Creation.
When we to conscienceness awake
And of life's joys and pains partake,
Our souls betimes ascend on high
And pierce the dome beyond the sky.
This proof of our Divine abode
Should nerve our hearts to bear life's load,
And tho to sense we cannot stay
As death stands grimly in our way,
He'll open wide the gates of gold
When our "Safe Passport" we unfold,
And vistas that no mind can know
Will set our hearts and souls aglow.

The generations we have known
And lived and loved—as we have grown
We'll gather round us, one by one,—
Fond names that in our memories run;
And as we feel a wondrous birth
That never could be known on earth,
We'll sound aloud a song of praise
To the Great ONE who guides our ways.

THE VALUE OF PEDIGREE

"The knowledge that one is descended from a lone of ancestors who have ascended to their God eminent for their intelligence, integrity and piety, can but lead a person to respect himself, and to determine not to dishonor in his own life the unspotted succession to which he belongs of men great in their goodness. I care not for distinctions founded upon wealth, office, or title."

HEGIRA OF THE DISSENTERS

That was a tough period in Oliver Cromwell's time! The chronicler recites that the great reformer came to the active front without much ado or apparent predestination. "From the date of his birth on a farm in Huntingdonshire to his first election to Parliament, in his 30th year, his life was almost uneventful, barring his marriage at the Church of St. Giles, on Aug. 22, 1620, which the parish register attests. For a moment, it is true, his voice was heard in the historic drama of those distracting times. Still there could be no prevision of the part he was to play. In a few months thereafter the King dismissed the people's representatives, and Cromwell went back to rural obscurity. Next we find him resolved to flee from the tyranny which he was destined, later, to crush." So the record runs. "The court party was bringing every engine of political and religious persecution to bear upon those who dared oppose it. The jails were full, the stocks in constant use. Yeoman and gentry were making their way to Holland, and thence to America, in search of liberty of life and conscience, fleeing from crass ritualism. On the morning of the 1st of May, 1637, there occurred one of those little incidents that pass almost unnoticed and unrecorded at the time, but prove afterward to have been the turning points of history. Eight emigrant ships lay in the Thames, ready to sail. On shore was a gathering of pilgrims who had said farewell to their native land and taken passage for a freer one beyond the sea. Oliver Cromwell was one of them; his famous cousin, John Hampden, was another. But as they came down to the wharf that morning their way was barred by soldiers. They might not sail. The king had issued a "royal ordinance," forbidding his subjects to leave England. Resistance was useless. Cromwell stayed, and with him, as Macaulay says, stayed the evil genius of the House of Stuart."

This is the legend as currently stated, though not universally accepted, as a true statement of facts. The pros and cons are fully set forth in various published references by French and English annalists. For these I am indebted to the intelligent researches and indefatigable perseverance of Mr. T. W. Osborn, of the University club, New York, and his nephew, Thomas C. Horton. The latter states that the lists which he found in the Historical Collections were very recently discovered by a clergyman in England among some ancient records which were about to be destroyed. So he caused them to be sent to the Massachusetts Historical Society. But for this fortuitous event, the res gestae of this crucial period would have been without authentic proof. Quoting from "England Under the Stuarts," London, 1882, Vol. II, p. 251:

"The fact is well known that Cromwell was once on the point of quitting England forever. To the non-conformist, the enemy of control, and the discontented of all classes, America at this period offered a vast field of unrestraint, and no indifferent means of subsistence. Many Puritans, and others, had already flocked there, and it was undoubtedly the policy of Charles to encourage such migration. The story is well known that at one time the government detained eight ships in the river, on board of which were Sir Arthur Hazelrig, Rich, Hampden, Pym, and Oliver Cromwell."

Although the truth of this story has been discussed there can be no doubt of Cromwell having at least on one occasion contemplated quitting England, for the recital goes on to say that "in 1641, when the grand remonstrance of the Commons against the general grievances of the nation was carried at 3 o'clock in the morning by a majority of only nine," we find Cromwell, on the House breaking up, confiding to Falkland what had previously been his intentions. "If that remonstrance had not passed," he said, "he would have sold all he had the next morning and never have seen England more"; and he added that "he knew many other honest men of the same resolution." (Cromwelliana, p. 2.)

Furthermore, from Lord Nugent's "Memorials of John Hampden, his Party and Times," p. 116, we have it that

"The spirit of emigration spread daily among the Puritans. The views of the greater number of that party were entirely directed to that object; thus leaving their leaders without any further duties to fulfill in England. But even this refuge from a persecution which appeared irresistible, and from which there remained no other means of escape, was refused them.

"This project, which would have relieved the government from the embarrassment of their presence, and of all their further plans, was defeated by an order of the King in council, dated April 6, 1638, by which all masters and owners of ships were restrained from setting forth any vessel with passengers for America without special license.

"The immediate effect of this monstrous edict is rendered remarkable by an event which has thrown over the whole a strange air of fatality. Eight ships, with respectable emigrants on board, were at this time lying in the Thames, bound for the new colony. In one of these had actually embarked for their voyage across the Atlantic, two no less considerable persons than John Hampden and his kinsman, Oliver Cromwell, the latter then little distinguished, except for an opposition which he conducted with great spirit and ability in his native county of Huntingdon, against the project of the Bedford Level, a work which, like all the other great schemes of improvement, had been converted into a monopoly which was to give new means of influence to the Crown. But the Court was unwilling that its opponents should anywhere enjoy or communicate the systems of freedom which they taught, or should peacefully withdraw themselves, even at the hazard of the total confiscation of their estates at home, from a control of whose success they despaired and from a country which they deemed to be hopelessly enslaved.

"A special order was therefore issued that these vessels by name should be detained, and the provisions landed which had been shipped for the voyage.

"Thus, in the alternative between flight and resistance, the government, as it were, bound down these eminent men to an opposite condition to that which they had chosen for themselves. Pride, character and obligation to party and to principle pledged them, so long as they should inhabit the country of their birth, to pursue the course they had begun. Hampden and Cromwell remained; to act, probably with very different views, certainly in very different circumstances; the one to be the first mover of resistance in arms to the King; the other to finally defeat and ruin the power in the field, to overthrow the monarchy, and to bring the Sovereign, by whom he was now so arbitrarily detained, to a public scaffold."

BRIEF SKETCH OF THE HALLOCK ANCESTRY

In the United States.

By Rev. William A. Hallock, D.D.

Published 1866.

PETER HALLOCK, the ancestor of those of the name in this country, was one of thirteen pilgrim fathers, including Rev. John Youngs, who in 1640 fled from civil and religious oppression in England, and landed at New Haven. In 1634, at Yarmouth, England, Rev. John Youngs and his wife Joan, of St. Margarets, Suffolk, were forbidden passage to New England. (History Puritans, Mass. Hist. Coll. Vol. 4, p. 101.) Mr. Youngs soon after settled at Hingham, in Norfolk Co. adjoining Suffolk, 100 miles northeast of London, and six years later on Oct. 21, 1640, he gathered his church anew under the auspices of Rev. John Davenport minister, and Theophilus Eaton governor of the New Haven Colony, which had just been planted April 18, 1638, under a branching oak— a virtual theocracy, the Bible their code of laws, ecclesiastical and civil.

In the same autumn Rev. Mr. Youngs and his church took up their abode in Southold then comprising the whole North-eastern branch of Long Island, landing at the harbor of what is now Southold Village, on the Peconic bay, where, as a church or town, they retained their connection with the New Haven colony till 1662, and with Connecticut till 1674.

Rev. Mr. Youngs continued his ministry Thirty-two years, and died Feb. 14, 1672 aged 74, as by his tombstone. The twelve men who with members of their families constituted his church were William Wells Esq., Barnabas Horton, and John Conklin, (whose graves are near that of their pastor), Peter Hallock, John Tuthill, Richard Terry, Thomas Mapes, Matthias Corwin, Robert Ackerly, Jacob Corey, Isaac Arnold, and John Budd, the first white settlers in that part of the island.

Peter Hallock's great-great-granddaughter, Elizabeth Hallock-Corwin, born 1732 who died at Old Aquebogue Feb. 12, 1831 aged 98, wife of Silas Corwin, gave to her granddaughters, Mrs. James Hallock, now of Quogue and Mrs. Rev. James T. Hamlin of Mattituck, Mr. Jonathan G. Horton, and others now living, the following facts, which are confirmed by multiplied records and memorials: that Peter Hallock was the first of the thirteen who ventured to step on shore among the Indians at Southold, that part of the village being still called "Hallocks Neck", and the beach extending from it "Hallocks Beach", of which beach Mr. Horton (who lives in the first frame house erected at Southold by his ancestor Barnabas Horton), is one of the joint owners; that Peter Hallock purchased from the Indians the tract since called Oyster Ponds, now Orient, the eastern end of this branch of the Island, that he then returned to England for his wife, who when he married her was a widow and had a son by her former husband Mr. Howell; that he promised her that, if she now accompanied him, her son should share with him in his property; that on coming back he found the Indians had resold what is now Orient; that he then purchased about ten miles from Southold village, a farm extending from Long Island Sound on the North, to Peconic Bay on the south, (three miles,) on which he settled in Aquebogue, about two miles west of Mattituck village and creek, all these places being then in Southold Town.

His original homestead on Long Island and that of his wife's son Howell were on adjacent lots, and are still occupied (1866) by their respective descendants, Benjamin Laurens Hallock and Sylvester Howell. On the south part of the purchase are the farms of Col. Micah W. and Dea. Ezra Hallock, great grandsons of Zerubabel Hallock, who was great grandson of Peter.

Numerous other families of Hallocks, most of them prosperous farmers reside on or near this purchase by Peter Hallock, but of the burial place of either himself or his son William, or his grandsons Thomas and Peter, who inherited the same premises, they have no knowledge.

WILLIAM HALLOCK who died Sept. 29, 1684, son of Peter Hallock, made a will which is preserved in the ancient records both of Suffolk Co. at Riverhead and of New York city. It is dated "Southold (township) Feb. 10, 1682," and was proved Oct. 21, 1684. "I commit my soul into the hands of Jesus Christ my gracious Redeemer, and my body to the earth by decent burial, in assured hope of the resurrection at the last day."

He gives his property to his wife Margaret, his four sons, THOMAS, PETER, WILLIAM, and JOHN, and his five daughters,

Margaret, Martha, Sarah, Elizabeth and Abigail. "The land where I now dwell at Aquebogue" (near Mattituck) and the lane dividing it, he wills to Thomas and Peter giving Thomas the western half "except the swamp lot" near his house; and giving Peter the eastern half with "the swamp lot" and his dwelling. To his son William he gives lands in or near Southold village, and to his son John, land in Wading River.

The will implies deep sorrow that his son John had married into and joined the then proscribed Society of Friends, and has the proviso that if any one of his sons "shall apostatize from the Protestant doctrine and faith" or "willfully and of set purpose contemn and neglect the public worship of God suitable thereto," what is here willed to him shall pass over to "the next lawful heir that shall steadfastly profess and own the said doctrine and faith."

The documentary history of the state of New York, in a list of those taxed in the township of Southold in 1675, gives but two of the name of Hallock, William taxed 361 pounds Sterling, and John, doubtless William's eldest son, 82 pounds; and in 1683 three of the name of Hallock, William 236 pounds, John 80 pounds and Thomas 81 pounds; Richard Howell, who lived on the lot adjoining the original homestead of Peter Hallock, being taxed in 1675, 77 pounds, in 1683, 98 pounds.

In the same history a list of the total inhabitants of Southold township in 1698 including men, women, and children, in all 881 gives 254 persons bearing the names of twelve of the above thirteen original settlers. Among these are twenty-three of the name of Hallock, viz., Margaret Hallock, widow, and in three distinct groups the families of three of William's sons:

1. Thomas Hallock, with Hope, Thomas, Kingsland, Ichabod, Zerubabel born 1696, Anna, Patience, and Richard.

2. Peter Hallock, with Eliza, Bethia, Abigal, Peter Jr., William, and Noah born 1696.

3. William Hallock, with Mary, William Jr., Prudence, Zebulon and Mary.

John, William's eldest son, having removed to Brookhaven, all the Hallocks in Southold township in 1698 were the above twenty-three, the widow and descendants of William Hallock who died 1684.

We quote from "HALLOCK ANCESTRY," published by Charles Hallock, M.A., in 1906, as follows:

HALLOCK—HOLYOKE

It is a curious fact that this most circumstantial and apparently incontrovertible story should now be discredited, after it has stood for more than two centuries and a half, by historians who once labored to establish its authenticity. It is even asserted that there was no Peter Hallock; and, indeed his name cannot be found on the passenger lists of colonists migrating to America in 1632-8, as given in the Mass. Hist. Collections. Whittaker himself, whose "History of Southold" is in the Long Island Historical Society's library, says in a note to the author of these lines:

"I repeated to your uncle, who compiled the Hallock Ancestry, the story which I had heard respecting Peter Hallock, and which is published in 'Griffins Journal'. I now know that the story is untrue. There is not a particle of evidence to be found that Peter Hallock was ever here."

But who was? Who was the historical man? Who was the Father of William, whose record is admitted to be "clear and accurate", as stated by his acts, and will of 1682? That will is signed William Hallock, but the copyist, whose rescript is of record, has inadvertantly subscribed it Holyoake, a noticeable departure from the original Holyoke. Recognising these Discrepancies in the spelling, which are conspicuous on gravestones and legal documents along the family line for the preceding forty years, the logical conclusion would be that well authenticated facts of long standing, and always accepted as historical data, have simply been overlaid by a mirage resulting from a distortion and interchange of family patronimics.

If Hallock is not a diatonic of Holyoke, whence and how did it originate? It is not common in England today, and is not of record at Yarmouth or Hingham whence Rev. Youngs and his company migrated.

The name Holyoke has been known in England for centuries, and there is a family coat of arms. One Edward Holyoke migrated from Stafford Co. in 1639, and was afterward President of Harvard College. His son Elizur Holyoke became well known in Northwestern Massachusetts in 1654 from having received a grant of land near Northampton; and Mt. Holyoke is named for him because he camped at its base while land looking. The family arms appear in his will (1711). He had a son Edward Augustus, who lived to be nearly 100 years old.

Now the signature to the application for the grant is spelt Elezer Holliok, while in the body of the application it is Halliock and again in a report published the next year (Nov. 1, 1654) it is spelled Elizer Holyoke. Further, the signature of the will of William Hallock of Long Island, dated at Southold (township) Feb. 10, 1682, and proved Oct. 21, 1684, and on record at Riverhead, is written Hollyoake by the copyist. In several earlier wills the signatures are Hallioak. The name Halliock appears on early tombstones in various graveyards of Eastern Long Island, but recent generations have substituted Hallock, Halleck, Hallick, and Hallack. The reason assigned and current on the Island is that the clansmen thought it sounded better. Halleck was first written by Dea. Jabez Halleck (born 1760 and died 1863, at Westernville Oneida Co. N. Y. aged 103 years. He wrote a running hand and did not round his letters, and so his o got flattened into e.)

Evidently the name was spelled by the sound. Few persons wrote or could write. The best scholars and authors spelled awkwardly. Orthography was in process of evolution. Chirography in business transactions was left to the clergy, scriveners, and clerks by principals, who took down phonetically the names as dictated. Pronouncing of proper names was not always clear or intelligible. It varied with individuals. Dialects were different according to districts and geographical location. Some individuals chopped their words, and some drawled. The name Holyoke seems to have been almost obsolete in American city directories and cyclopedias of biography. Quite recently, in 1888, one of the family living in England came over to America in quest of kinsfolk, and found few of the name, if any.

For two generations after the emigration, in 1630-40, the name of Holyoke persisted as spelled; thence onward continued variations took place. Just now, it is quite difficult for inquirers to find Hallocks in England or Holyokes in America.

CONCLUSION.

There is little doubt that the name of Peter Hallock, in England was HOLYOKE. He may have changed his name to facilitate his departure at a time when many were prevented from leaving by order of the King, and that upon arrival he continued this change of name which was variously spelled as found in documents and records of these early days.

Quoting from the "Genealogical and Family History of the State of Connecticut," by the Lewis Historical Publishing Co. of New York, the spelling of the name is given as: Holyeake, Holliok, Halliock, Halleck, Hollioak, Hallick, Hallack, Hollyoake, and Hallock, all diatonics of Holyoke.

If there is any doubt as to the authenticity of PETER, the father of us all, the continual recurrence of this name in the early generations is an abiding evidence of the existence of an ancestor of that name who walked about in the flesh, and was known to them. It occurs 22 times in our records of these early generations.

The first attempt to gather and set in order the descendants of PETER HALLOCK was the work of Rev. William A. Hallock, Senior Secretary of The American Tract Society. His "Hallock Ancestry" was published in 1866, and tabulated these descendants down to that date. He says of his work:

"Having had the acquaintance of most of those whose testimony is here given, examined most of the wills, deeds and documents, visited the principal localities, ancient residents and graves, and carefully weighed the evidence in every case, I regard the main statements above as unquestionably reliable."

With the work of Dr. William A. Hallock as a starting point, his nephew, Charles Hallock, M.A., continued the investigation and tabulation and published his "Hallock Ancestry" in 1906. These two capable and painstaking workers have performed a service that would be impossible at this late day, and have built a trustworthy foundation upon which this somewhat imposing superstructure is erected.

The work has extended itself beyond the anticipation of the writer and has practically absorbed his time and attention the past three years. It has necessitated the writing of more than 1000 letters, and tabulates the contributions of 300 co-workers. The friendly interest and encouraging words of these helpers is fully appreciated and thankfully acknowledged. An effort has been made to give credit in the sketches.

The work of writing a Genealogy is beset with many difficulties, as those who have undertaken it well know. Much pains has been taken to avoid mistakes, but to eliminate them entirely is impossible. It is the hope of the author that they will not be so frequent and annoying as to vitiate the value of the work.

While the work was attempted in a measure, accidentally, the author is thankful that in the twilight of a strenuous lifetime, he has been granted the leisure and inclination that was absolutely necessary for success. Much credit must also be accorded to the constant assistance and encouragement of an enthusiastic helper who presides over his household and has been his constant companion for nearly 50 years. He will be pleased to introduce her to you in "A Little Journey."

The publication of the work has also been ably handled by an interested son-in-law, and these three have constituted the editorial staff of the author and made possible this contribution to the family records of the descendants of the original PETER HALLOCK.

See "The Editorial Staff."

With these few remarks, historical and otherwise, we trust that the interested inquirer will feel a desire to become more intimately acquainted with those who bear the name of "HALLOCK," and that those who already belong to this growing family will be pleased to trace their connections and relations with their numerous cousins.

To illustrate the dimensions of some of the families of the early days, we quote from Rev. William A. Hallock in his "Ancestry:"

"William Hallock, who died 1784, had four sons and five daughters. His son John, and his grandson John, had ten daughters each, who married into the families of Powell, Underhill, Willets, Willis, and Hunt. Peter, born 1694, had nine daughters. Edward, born 1717, had nine daughters, who all had families."

The writer has found it very difficult to trace all these daughters, as his predecessors have not burdened their records to any great extent with the female members of the family. The ten daughters of the first John have been most difficult to place.

He has, however, discovered this much concerning them, that five married four brothers, all being good Quakers of the name of "Willets".

INHERITED LONGEVITY

We quote from Charles Hallock's "Ancestry," page 39:

"The Hallock family is noted for its longevity. Subjoined is a list of 64 persons of record for two centuries whose ages average 87 and one-half years. They are chiefly males, and probably comprise about two-fifths of the entire aggregate. A great many others are still living whose ages approximate 80 years, and quite a few between that figure and 100. It will be perceived that seventeen of those enumerated were 90 years old and upward, and three over 100."

PLACING THE GENERATIONS

Under this title is tabulated the approximate date of the Generations, numbering the original PETER as the first. The number of the generation is given in each case, on the diagrams and in the sketches, but the dates of birth are not always available.

By referring to this page an approximate idea of the lacking dates can be obtained in such cases.

The dates of birth in the different generations may be placed, approximately, as follows:

1st.	Generation	1610	to	1630.	Peter.
2nd.	"	1640	"	1660.
3rd.	"	1670	"	1690.
4th.	"	1700	"	1720.
5th.	"	1730	"	1750.
6th.	"	1760	"	1780.	Revolutionary.
7th.	"	1790	"	1810.
8th.	"	1820	"	1840.
9th.	"	1850	"	1870.
10th.	"	1880	"	1900.
11th.	"	1910	"	1930.

A few births have been reported to us in the 12th generation, but those in the 11th are still in order and the above dates, in most cases, will not lead one very far astray.

THE HOLYOKE-HALLOCK ARMS

ARMS: Azure, a chevron, argent, coticed, or, between three crescents of the second.

CREST: A crescent, argent.

(Another crest is a cubic arm erect, habited gules cuffed argent, holding in the hand proper an oak branch fruited or)

Heraldic Journal, ii, 180; iv., 90.

Emmerton and Waters: "Gleanings from English Records" 57, (1880).

S. G. Drake: "The History and Antiquities of Boston" (1856).

S. V. Talcott: "New York and New England Families", 568.

Sir Bernard Burke: "The General Armory of England" etc., (1884).

We conclude that the Holyoke Arms, as they appear upon this page, can be honorably appropriated by descendants of the original PETER HALLOCK who are interested in the subject of Heraldry, and desire to adopt a Crest for family use. They appear in the will of Elizur Holyoke in 1711. He was son of Edward Holyoke who migrated from Stafford county in 1639 and was afterward President of Harvard College. He became well known in Northwestern Massachusetts in 1654 from having received a grant of land near Northampton as stated heretofore.

EXPLANATION OF THE DIAGRAMS

The diagrams following this page are numbered independently of the page numbering. This enables the inquirer, by means of the index, to find any given name, and trace the same through the preceding generations to the original PETER.

Before explaining more fully how this is done, the general plan upon which the diagrams are arranged, should be set forth.

The descendants of the original PETER naturally arrange themselves into four groups. This PETER had only one son, William. William had four sons, and each of these had a very large progeny, thus naturally dividing the Hallock descendants into four groups or branches.

The names of these four grandsons were:

THOMAS PETER WILLIAM and JOHN.

The first nine diagrams are devoted to the descendants of THOMAS, and his name appears at the top of each diagram. The succeeding diagrams from the ninth to the thirteenth contain the descendants of PETER.

Then follows, including the 17th diagram, those of WILLIAM. The final 12 diagrams have at their head the name JOHN. This is the most prolific branch.

To give a spectacular illustration of this arrangement, the first page in each division is given a caption as follows:

1. PETER.
2. WILLIAM.

3. THOMAS 3. PETER. 3. WILLIAM. 3. JOHN

The one of these four, to which the diagram is devoted is signified by the name at the top, and is also connected, by a line, with the names following.

This specific caption is not in evidence except on the first diagram of each group. The succeeding diagrams in each group are headed somewhat differently in order to economize space. We think, however, that they will be easily mastered.

The names in the body of the diagram are so arranged that each and every one can be easily traced through the preceding generations to the original PETER.

A small figure will be noted at the left, or upper side of each family group. This denotes the number of the generation, counting the original PETER the first.

The children in each family are surrounded or enclosed by a line having a lead, in some part of its circumference, directing to the parent of this particular family in the preceding family group. This group also has a lead directing to its parent, and this method is continued until the original PETER is reached.

It will also be noted that some of the names are followed by a hand-written figure. This denotes the diagram upon which the descendants of this person can be followed out.

Quite a number of the names are followed by an asterisk. A sketch of each one of these persons will be found in the "Hallock Biography," where the data that has been collected in each case is tabulated. These sketches are necessarily very brief. We hope, however, that they will be found, in many cases, to contain valuable data. Much persistent effort has been put forth to obtain this data, and it has been contributed by a small army of interested relatives and friends.

An effort has been made in gathering material for this work, to obtain the names of all the female members of the family as well as the males. It will be noticed that many of these names are separated by a short dash, thus: Hannah Hallock-Woodhull. This denotes that this Hannah Hallock became the wife of a man whose name was "Woodhull." When this wedded contingency occurs, and it seems to be quite common, the children will not bear the honorable name of "Hallock."

The diagrams, however, generally contain the names of such children, but do not continue their descendants further. When further data is contributed, it is tabulated in the skech of the mother, who was a "Hallock" before marriage.

A number of cases have appeared where a "Hallock" has married a "Hallock." When these are on the same diagram, they are connected by a dotted line.

These diagrams are somewhat unique, and may appear a little complicated at first, but with these explanations we trust that they will be easily mastered.

They have been veritable life savers for the writer in compiling this work, and we wish them good luck in making many new acquaintances. The system has developed naturally as the work progressed.

A necessary index follows the diagrams, according to which any name can be found without serious difficulty.

Of the four branches into which the descendants of PETER HALLOCK are divided in this work, it may be said that the THOMAS branch is found largely in Mattituck and Northville, L. I. The PETER branch contains many notable persons, including Gen. Henry Wager Halleck. They settled in Mattituck, and from there to the south side of the Island, and are found all over the land, some being missionaries in China.

The WILLIAM branch is the least prolific. Their original home was largely in Cutchogue and Southold.

The JOHN branch is the most prolific and contains a large number of Quakers, or Friends. They settled in and about Setauket, L. I., but like the other branches they have undertaken to explore the land, and are found in large numbers in the region of the Hudson River, and in the West.

Our ancestors were undoubtedly of Puritan stock and strongly religious in their beliefs and practices.

They had a strong aversion to the formalism of the Protestant Church of their native land, which was an integral part of the State, and the simplicity of their public worship was carried to an extreme. It is needless to observe that the swing of the pendulum has returned, and ritual and formal observances are again coming into their own.

The following three leaves (6 pages) are for family use, to write in extension diagrams. In this way the descendants of a particular family can be tabulated for many years to come.

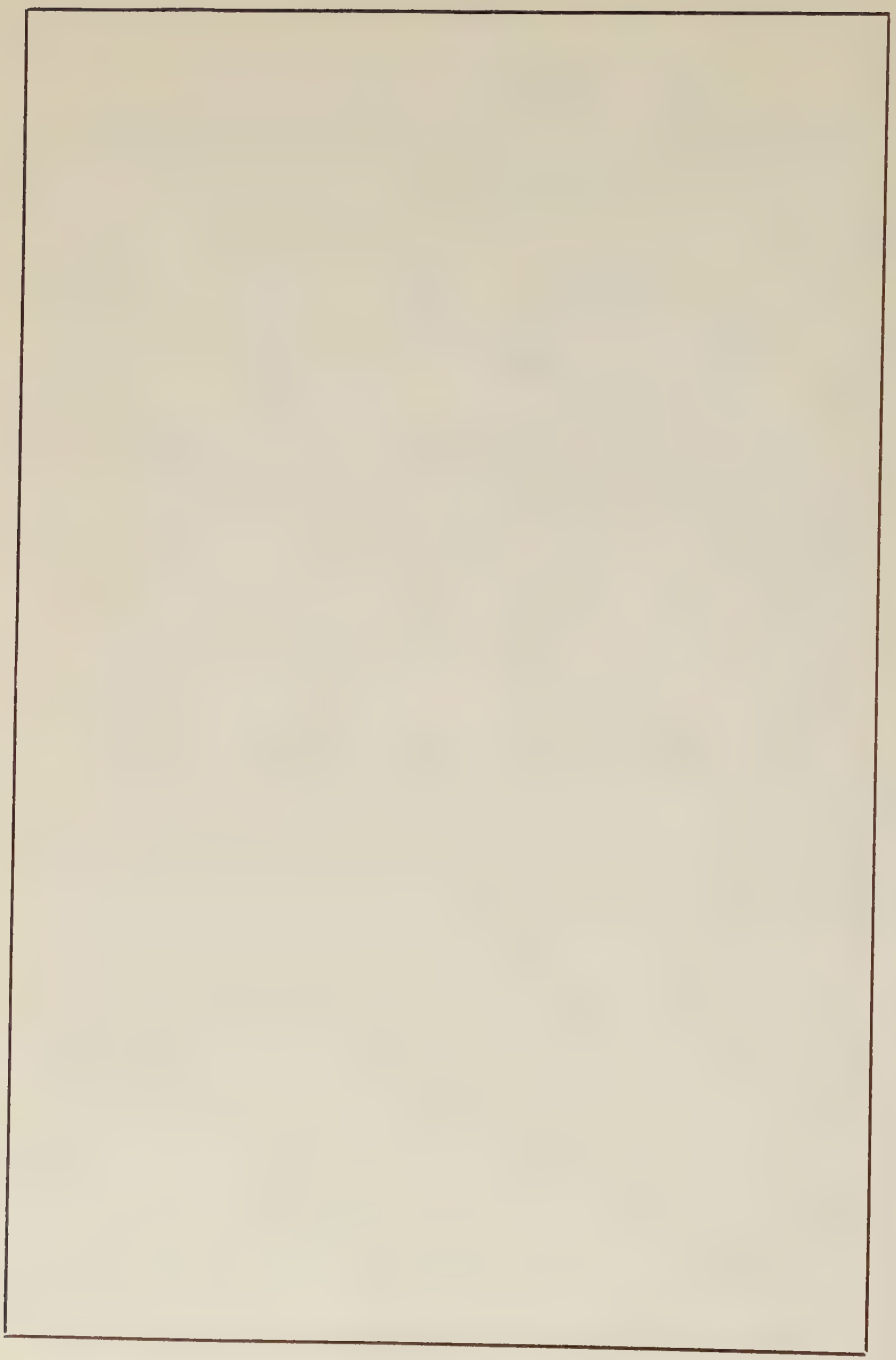
THE FOLLOWING 6 PAGES ARE FOR FAMILY USE.

A preceding diagram, giving the connection of an interested family, can be continued through succeeding generations for centuries to come.



THE DIAGRAM INDEX.

This necessary adjunct to the diagrams, has been prepared with great care, and we trust that it will be easily understood and that its use will be fully appreciated.

The names are arranged in alphabetical order for easy reference. As explained, preceding the diagrams, the descendants of William, only son of the original PETER, are divided into four groups, which are respectively the descendants of his four sons, Thomas, Peter, William and John.

The letter preceding each name indicates to which of these groups the succeeding name belongs. The letter is followed by a figure. This denotes the number of the generation, counting PETER as the first. Then follows the name indexed. The name following is that of the father, in the preceding generation. The last figure in the line indicates the number of the diagram upon which the names of father and son can be found.

With these explanations and those preceding the diagrams, we are possessed with the thought that the ordinary mind, though not versed in the intricacies of genealogical tabulation, may without difficulty obtain any information that these pages contain.

It is well to bear in mind that the short dash - following the name of a female, indicates that she is married, and the name following is the surname of the husband. This practice is followed in the diagrams, the index and the Biography.

THE HALLOCK BIOGRAPHY

In order to obtain the full benefit of these personal sketches, a word in explanation of the system according to which they are arranged, will be in order.

1st. All the persons whose names are entered in the Biography are, or were "Hallocks," with some variation in spelling the name. The order of arrangement is therefore according to their first, or given names. In the case of women who have married, the name is followed by a short dash - and the surname of the husband follows. Whenever this short dash appears, in this work, it has this signification.

2d. The name heading the sketch is rendered in capitals, and is followed by a capital letter, and a figure, thus: T.7. These indicate the line to which the person belongs, and the generation as numbered in the diagrams. The four lines of descent have been fully set forth preceding the diagrams. The one or more names following, are immediate predecessors, and the number of the generation follows each name. The figure at the end of the line indicates the diagram upon which the names in their respective order, will be found.

3d. If it is desired to trace the forebears of the person indicated, it can be easily done by turning to the diagram, and bearing in mind the number of the generation, which numbers are affixed in the diagrams, the name can readily be found and traced back through the several generations by following the lines as explained preceding the diagrams.

4th. In these sketches the names of the children are given in the order of birth when this is known, followed by the date. If further data has been contributed the same is indicated by an asterisk*. The name so indicated will be found in its order elsewhere.

Examples.

Right here would say that these diagram references were at first marked p. for page, instead of d, for diagram. It was found later that the page numbering would not

PETER HALLOCK. The Original. d. 1.

Was born about 1600. Was probably an English Puritan, but his antecedents were unknown.

According to a well authenticated legend, he landed at Southold, L. I., about 1640, with 12 others, all members of a Presbyterian Church in Hingham, Norfolk Co., England, about 100 miles N.E. of London. They were accompanied by Rev. John Youngs, their pastor, and immediately set up a church, naming the place Southold, apparently after a Southwold in their native land.

Peter Hallock was accompanied later by his second wife, known as the Widow Howell. She had a son and a daughter by a former husband and he also had a son by a former wife. He promised her that if she would accompany him to this new world, her son should share equally with his in his estate.

After landing in Southold he proceeded west and purchased a strip of land from the Indians in the western part of what is now Mattituck, reaching from the Sound to the Bay, about three and one-half miles, and about one-half mile wide. His wife's son, Richard Howell, was settled on the west part of this strip, and his descendant, Elizabeth Howell, still occupies it.

The old homestead was on the east part, and the farm is still held by his descendant, George Omar Hallock, the 9th generation from the original PETER.

Peter Hallock had one son, William, who married Margaret Howell, daughter of the widow Howell, before she became the wife of Peter. As his mother was a former wife of Peter, they were not related.

The widow's son, Richard, also married a daughter of William, thus effectually uniting the Hallocks and the Howells.

The children of Richard and Elizabeth Howell were: John, Daniel, Richard, Jonathan, Isaac, Jacob, Hannah, and Dorothy, thus giving the Howells a fairly good start.

The children of William and Margaret Hallock were: Thomas, Peter, William, and John, with daughters: Margaret, Martha, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Abigail.

The four sons of William stand at the head of the four divisions of the Hallock descendants in which this genealogy is arranged.

The burial place of Peter, and of his son, William, and grandsons, Thomas and Peter, is unknown.

HALLOCK CONNECTIONS

PART FIRST, HUSBANDS. PART SECOND, WIVES

In this division it is undertaken to set forth the names of those who have, by marriage, connected themselves with those bearing the name of "Hallock," together with those whom they have married, with the data necessary for reference to the "Biography" and to the "Diagrams." Whatever further data has been contributed concerning these unions will be readily found in the "Biography," and the number of the "Diagram" is given, upon which the name and its connections will be found.

The first division of these "Connections" is devoted to the Husbands, who, by intermarrying, have, according to the custom of society, imprinted their own names upon their families in place of the honorable name of "Hallock." In this division the wife, in every case, was a "Hallock" before marriage, and her name will be found in the "Biography" and in the "Diagrams." The children of these unions are usually given in the diagrams, but the descendants are not carried further. The biography, however, under the name of the wife, contains all the data that has been contributed of the descendants, which in some cases runs through several generations.

The persons who are given personal sketches in the biography are, or were, all "Hallocks," with some variation in the spelling. The diagram index also contains only those who are, or were, "Hallocks."

If it is desired to find the name of one, not a "Hallock" but a descendant of a "Hallock," the "Connections" will facilitate the search if the name of the husband who married a "Hallock" is known.

The second division is devoted to the wives that the "Hallocks" have taken unto themselves. These are listed by their first, or given, names. Their full maiden name is given when known, but we have found it more useful to list them according to their given names. In many cases their maiden surname is not known. These maiden names are often given as a heritage to some one of the children, but they disappear from public knowledge, being surrendered to the general welfare of the family relation, and to the necessities of public record. In some cases the maiden surname only, of the wife, has been contributed. In such cases the wife is listed by this surname.

While these maiden names do not, to any great extent, imprint themselves upon the children, their record is of interest to the searcher after genealogical lore, and we have undertaken to give them the notice that by right belongs to them. This section has grown by degrees and we have found it very useful in compiling the work.

EXAMPLE. PART FIRST.

CALHOUN, JAMES, mar. Harriet M. Hallock. J. 9.
Read thus: John Elijah 8. d. 20.

James Calhoun married Harriet M. Hallock. She was of the John line (as heretofore explained) and was in the 9th generation from the original "Peter." Her father was John Elijah Hallock of the 8th generation, and these names will be found on diagram 20.

Further data of this "Harriet" can be obtained from the sketch of HARRIET M. HALLOCK-CALHOUN, J. 9.

EXAMPLE. PART SECOND.

ANNA ELIZABETH FANNING, wife.
Read thus: Daniel B. T. 8. Col. Micah W. 7. d. 6.

Anna Elizabeth Fanning was wife of Daniel B. Hallock. He was of the Thomas line, and the 8th generation. He was son of Col. Micah Hallock, of the 7th generation, and these names will be found on diagram 6. Further data of Daniel B. Hallock will be found in the sketch bearing his name in the Biography.

In part second the surname of the husband is omitted. It is understood that they are all "Hallocks."

Explanation of

HALLOCK REVOLUTIONARY RECORD

This section of the work that we have undertaken has been added in consideration of the numerous inquiries coming in for certain knowledge concerning the activities of the forebears of the inquirers during the Revolutionary Period.

The purpose of these inquirers is to ascertain if they are eligible to become members of The Daughters of the American Revolution, or of kindred societies, through their Hallock connection.

We have made an effort to render assistance in this matter and have consulted various agencies and authorities in order to find who, bearing the name of Hallock, were Revolutionary Patriots in word and deed, and finding the names of such members of our family, to enable their descendants to trace their connection and obtain the evidence required for membership.

The young or middle-aged men of the Revolutionary Period were mostly of the fifth or sixth generation from the original Peter. The present generation of similar age generally belong to the ninth or tenth generation. The names, as found in the records, at the various sources enumerated in this section, are given in CAPITALS, exactly as found in respect to titles and spelling. Following each name is a comment by the author, giving the data necessary in order to fix the name in its correct relation. This comment embodies the knowledge obtained in compiling the work, and the best judgment of the author.

It is hoped that this section of the work may not only be of interest, but may prove of some value to those who are the descendants of these Patriots who lived in troublous times, and to whom we owe a debt of gratitude that we can best discharge by living the lives of True-hearted American Citizens.

SOURCES.

As stated in the introduction, this work has been made possible by the labors of two careful and capable investigators, who have traced the descendants of the original Peter from the time of his arrival in Southold, L. I., about 1640, to the beginning of the present century.

The first of these searchers after genealogical data, the Rev. William A. Hallock, D.D., devoted much time traveling about and gathering all available data, and his "Ancestry" was published in 1866.

Forty years later his nephew, Charles Hallock, M. A., continued the good work and published his "Hallock Ancestry" in 1906. The data contained in these two works is the basis of the present endeavor, the purpose being to follow "The Procession of the Generations" to the present time.

The descendants of our common ancestor have spread themselves over this great land of ours, and it has been no small undertaking to search them out. They have, however, responded generously, in the main, and their contributions have been a chief source of data in compiling the work and bringing it down to date.

A list of these contributors would contain the names of some 600 or more.

In addition to the above, various works have been consulted and have been of great value in the collection of data tabulated in the progress of the work, and we hereby gratefully acknowledge our indebtedness to these factors.

A REFLECTION

A labor of love these pages contain;
They start on their journey your good will to gain:
The data they hold came from near and afar,
And some misadventures these pages will mar.
But after a careful last look and review.
We call up your number, and give them to you.

A burden dropped on us beyond our control
And waked up our energies, body and soul;
An innocent pastime—it seemed to invite,
And promised adventure to last over night;
But like the rude camel in fable of old
Who asked a wee bit of the cloth to unfold,
The wily usurper soon took the whole tent,
And 'spite of entreaty he would not absent.

But we have no complaint to make
Our task we never could forsake
And many friends our zeal has made
Who well our labor have repaid.

And now we send these pages out
With a last fond farewell;
They'll speak to you we do not doubt
And many a tale they'll tell.
They've been impertinent at times
And entered many a home;
They've searched this land of many climes,
As far and near they roam.
They've oft explored the silent land
Where spectors stand on every hand,
And Scripture page they've not ignored
When it with vital truth was stored,
And contributions far and wide
Have found a home, here to abide.

Frail man seems filled with strong desire
To extend his little span,
For this he's pointed many a spire—
Sought wondrous works to plan.
Mayhap that we with fond ambition
Have made a future requisition—
Betimes some later generation
May fondly offer an ovation.
